Treehouse is a sense of community, nature, and a space for big thoughts. The target audience is young people (15+), who are ready to be challenged and to grow.

In the tree tops a joint project is built, where everyone is co-creators. Everybody will have something to offer, regardless of ability and self-confidence.

The working community provides the framework for the fulfillment of the Treehouse philosophy's focal points:

- Collaboration and active participation in a community
- Initiative, self-determination, and responsibility

- Creative thinking and problem solving
- International perspective, cultural encounters, and success stories across languages
- Personal boundaries
- Reflection on sustainability, faith, and social life

Treehouse is an independent as well as an integral part of the activities offered by the YMCA and YWCA, and will therefore be part of activities, festivals, and camps, both locally and nationally.
